It's Grilling Season!

Grilling Tips from the Pros

Direct vs indirect cooking

If food takes less than 20 minutes to cook, use direct heat; if it takes longer, use indirect heat says Elizabeth Karmel, grilling pro and author. This is one of the best tips for grilling chicken to ensure juicy results.

Picture perfect burgers

Burgers can puff up in the middle as they cook, making the tops rounded and awkward for piling on the toppings. To avoid this, press an indentation into the top of each raw patty with your thumb or the back of a spoon. When the center pushes up, the top of each burger will be relatively level, says Jamie Purviance, grilling pro & author.

Surefire skewers

Whether you're making veggie kabobs or ones with meat, don't skimp when you're threading them on the skewers. Kabob ingredients, such as chicken pieces, will stay juicier longer if they are touching one another (but not crammed) on the skewers.

Season gently

Be delicate when applying rubs, Karmel says. If you rub seasonings hard into the food you can damage the meat fibers & textures of the food and run the risk of over-seasoning it.

Go low & slow with ribs

For tender ribs, maintain a low temperature for several hours. Follow the indirect cooking method (and don't be tempted to peek). "Spikes & valleys of heat will tighten & dry out the meat, but consistently low temps will produce soft & succulent meat," Purviance says.

Ready for Dining El Fresco?

Here's a Few Tips from mygardyn.com

Don't over think the menu.

Creating a beautiful meal doesn't have to require a long grocery list and complicated instructions. "A fail-safe dish that's quick to assemble and full of flavor is a Caprese salad," shares Katie McCall, food writer & baker. "Adding greens like tender and mild flashy trout back lettuce leaves can really boost the meal, both visually and nutritionally."

Bring your dishes outdoors.

Who made the rule that you only use paper products when dining outside? Linda McFadden, luxury lifestyle and gathering expert, says don't hesitate to bring your favorite home accents, including dishes & linens, to your open air soiree.

Keep pests away without harming the environment.

Select a space preferably away from standing water. If electricity is convenient, set up a few fans to circulate the air around your dining space. Plant lemongrass around social areas. Or create small floral arrangements by pulling lavender, mint, rosemary, basil & lemongrass pods (all which naturally repel insects) from your garden and add them to a jar or container with water.

Things are looking up! As the country begins to open up and travel has become a possibility again, we are happy to announce this exciting VIP tour for Fall 2021!
